DECLARATION OF LONNA ATKESON

I. Statement of Inquiry

1. I have been retained as an expert by the Mi Familia Vota Action to consider the viability of allowing in-person voters to vote on paper ballots instead of electronic voting machines in Texas due to health concerns related to COVID-19.

II. Background and Qualifications

2. I am a Professor of Political Science at the University of New Mexico. I earned my PhD at the University of Colorado, Boulder in 1995. Since 1995, I have been employed by the University of New Mexico, and have been a Professor since 2006. At the University of New Mexico, I also direct the Center for the Study of Voting, Elections and Democracy (since 2010), and the Institute for Social Research (since 2016).

3. I study American politics and, within that, election science, election administration, survey methodology, public opinion, political behavior, gender, and race and ethnicity. I have written over 50 articles and book chapters, dozens of technical reports, monographs, amicus curiae briefs and other works on these topics. Many of my peer reviewed articles are published in top journals in my field, including the American Political Science Review, the American Journal of Political Science, the Journal of Politics, Political Analysis, Electoral Studies, Election Law Journal, Political Research Quarterly, American Politics Quarterly, Political Behavior, Social Science Quarterly, etc., and several articles, book chapters, reports and briefs speak specifically to the election ecosystem, including election implementation. I have spent countless hours observing elections since 2006 from start to finish, including attending poll worker training, observing voting, observing the VBM voter process, the provisional process, chain of custody, and postelection audits, etc; and, in 2010, recreated an election to test the reliability of voting machines and to assist in promulgating rules for post-election audits. I also have written or co-edited 4 books, two of which bear directly on my expertise in election administration. The first is a co-authored book with R. Michael Alvarez and Thad Hall entitled, Evaluating Elections: A Handbook of Methods and Standards (Cambridge, 2013). The second is a coedited book with the same set of authors on election audits, entitled Confirming Elections: Creating Confidence and Integrity through Election Audits (Palgrave, 2012).

4. In addition, I have worked as a consultant for the Department of Defense, Federal Voting Assistance Program, and with private companies to assess the Election Administration Voting Survey (EAVS), a national survey of county and state election administration data for the Election Assistance Commission (EAC). I have testified at legislative hearings and EAC hearings, and I have been asked to advise legislators on election reforms. My work in New Mexico that partners with local and state elected officials to improve the conduct of elections has led to a number of external awards from groups such as Common Cause and Verified Voting.

My research has been supported by the National Science Foundation, the Pew Charitable Trusts, the Thornburg Foundation, the Galisano Foundation, the JEHT Foundation, Bernalillo County, the New Mexico Secretary of State, and the New Mexico Department of Transportation. I am regularly asked to comment on surveys, election administration, elections, and American politics to the local and national press and serve as the election analyst for KOB-TV, our local NBC affiliate.

5. My curriculum vitae for the last 10 years is attached as Appendix A.

6. In the last four years, I submitted an expert report in the following (1) Driscoll, et al v. Stapleton. Corey No DV 20-0408 (testified); (2) Voto Latino, et al. v. Hobbs, No 2:19-cv-05685-DWL 2020; (3) in Holmes, et al. v. Moore, et al., No. 18-cv-15292 (Wake Cnty. Sup. Ct.); (4) Curling, et al. v. Brian Kemp, et al., C.A. 7. I am being compensated at an hourly rate of $300. My compensation is not dependent on my opinions or conclusions.

III. Feasibility of Using Paper Ballots for In-Person Voting

8. This spring, the COVID-19 pandemic has upended some of our nation's election systems with over a dozen states rescheduling their primary and several more making changes in their implementation to attempt to move more voters to VBM.¹ Other states who have not made

9. Texas has strict absentee voter laws that prevent many voters who are concerned about COVID-19 from moving to VBM.³ Therefore, many voters are required to vote in-person. Black, Latino, and Native Americans have been disproportionately affected by the pandemic with larger numbers of cases, hospitalizations and deaths and therefore their communities might be at greater risk of being infected with the virus through in-person voting during the general election.⁴

10. Different election jurisdictions process and count in-person votes differently.

There are 3 systems of voting in Texas for in-person voting. These include⁵

- 1) Paper ballots counted by hand
- 2) Paper ballots counted by optical scan
- 3) Direct Record Electronic Systems (DRE) systems that are electronic voting machines in which voters are provided an access code or a ballot activator to begin the voting process and follow the on-screen instruction to cast a vote. These machines use either touch screen or dials to select candidates and page through the ballot.

11. DRE machines require voters to enter the space and touch equipment that another voter or many voters have previously used. This leaves open the possibility that virus particles could be either on the DRE machine or floating around it, endangering the lives of voters as they enter and exit the area. In addition, to properly disinfect the DRE machine after each voter would be very burdensome, time-consuming and dangerous to the safety and health of the poll workers. This would also likely increase line length and the efficiency of the polling place as each system would have to be disinfected before another person can enter. Therefore, electronic machines may not be a safe or desired method of voting and consequently may deter voters from voting and poll workers from watching over the polls.

12. One solution would be to provide the option of a paper ballot to all voters who enter a polling place. Because all jurisdictions have to use paper ballots for some of their voters, specifically Uniformed and Overseas Absentee Voting Act voters and absentee by mail voters, Texas counties could extend the paper option in the precinct polling place for any voter who felt that a voter touchscreen machine might be hazardous or dangerous to their health and safety.

13. Jurisdictions could do this in one of two ways. They could purchase or perhaps rent ballot-on-demand (BoD) printer technology or they could include pre-printed paper ballots in each precinct. BoD technology creates an appropriate ballot for a voter at the time they request it. In a BoD system, a voter would first be qualified and then the poll worker would print through the BoD system the correct ballot for the voter. Alternatively, each precinct could have a generous supply of precinct paper ballots that would be given to a voter after he or she is qualified. For early voting and jurisdictions that rely on vote centers this would necessitate that all voting locations have all ballot styles at their locations. Prior to BoD systems this was how many places with paper ballots handled their early voting processes. They organized cubbies of ballot styles in each early voting location so that any ballot style could be accessed and voted.⁶

14. After the voter completes the ballot, he or she would drop the ballot into a secure ballot box for future counting either by hand or through a central tabulator. Locations that do not have central scanners must have a process for processing domestic and overseas paper ballots, which could be expanded. Locations could also rent a scanner for this purpose if they do not have one.

15. This would require some, but not much additional auditing for counties that do not currently rely on a paper ballot system at the end of election night because poll workers would have to reconcile their vote totals with both the paper ballots and the electronic voting machines. This, however, would not be that costly to poll workers and they could easily count both the number of ballots cast by paper, and the number of ballots cast by machine and compare that with the number of voters processed.

16. Whether ballots would be counted at the precinct or at a central location could be decided by each jurisdiction depending on their voting population and the number of ballots affected. Chain of custody issues would have to be added to ensure the security of these ballots, but this is not onerous as chain of custody rules are already in place for records on the DRE machine, and other counties have processes for these types of ballots that could be borrowed and modified.

17. Many states use BoD systems and history shows the high tech option works well and could be integrated with election systems in Texas. Alternatively the low tech option is still in use by many states as well. In Montana, for example, all Election Day in-person voters submit a paper ballot for counting by dropping it into a secure ballot box. Paper ballots are simply provided at the precinct in large enough quantities to facilitate precinct level voting.

18. These small changes to the voting process would both increase the speed at which voters are processed, since voting machines would not have to be disinfected as often, and would increase the safety of polling place voting, reducing the spread of the virus. Social distancing could be more easily maintained, and voters would not have to touch a voting machine that has been touched by dozens, if not hundreds, of other voters. Given that there will be more demand for voting for the 2020 general election compared to the primary, moving to paper ballots for processing voters is an attractive option for improving Texas' election systems during COVID-19.

Pursuant to 28 USC § 1746, I declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct to the best of my knowledge.
